Promotions at Al Areen for Reem Tawfiqi, Shayma Nuruddin and Hussain Juma

Al Areen is proud to announce the promotion of three Bahraini members of staff, Reem Tawfiqi, Shayma Nuruddin and Hussain Juma, who were recently honoured by CEO Tariq Ali AlJowder and General Manager Matthew Austin.

"Reem, Shayma and Hussain have all contributed significantly to Al Areen's progress over the past two years, and we are pleased to reward all their hard work and dedication," said Mr Al Jowder, "My warmest congratulations go out to all three."

Mr. Austin added that Al Areen prides itself on its high employee retention rate.

"Our HR policies are designed to identify and reward strong performers. I wish the three of them continued success with us for many years to come," he continued.

Ms. Tawfiqi, who joined Al Areen in January 2008 as Marketing and Corporate Communications Coordinator, was recently promoted to Sales & Marketing officer. A Management Information Systems (MIS) graduate of Kingdom University, she is responsible for photography, graphic design, the promotion and selling of available clusters to developers and also assists developers with their own sales.

Ms. Nuruddin has been promoted to head the Technical Interface Office, where she will be responsible for the review, implementation and enforcement of developer guidelines, the assessment of submission requirements and the review and progress of the facilities management system. She will also be monitoring the development of the Al Areen master plan. Ms. Nuruddin, who holds a B.Sc. in Architecture from the University of Bahrain, joined Al Areen in 2008 as an architect, following a short spell as an undergraduate trainee.

Mr. Juma joined Al Areen as an accountant and was recently promoted to Senior Accountant, where his expanded responsibilities include dealing with the various banks, assisting in the adoption of new accounting standards and procedures, reviewing and controlling accounting documentation and the books of accounts.

Al Areen Appoints Maryam Almulla as HR Manager

Al Areen is pleased to announce the appointment of Maryam Yousif Almulla, a professional with more than 10 years of experience in the HR and Administration field, as its new HR Manager.

Welcoming Ms. Almulla aboard, General Manager Matthew Austin said: "We consider our people to be Al Areen's most valuable resource and are delighted to have Maryam here to assist us. She brings to our team the experience of working in a variety of different organizations, both large and small, public and private. Maryam has the ideal experience for dealing with the diverse nature of our business and particularly as we expand and transform from being the master developer to the managers of the Al Areen estate."

Ms. Almulla comes to the team from Gulf Management & Services, where she held the position of Human Resources Officer in charge of managing the Administration and Human Resources Department since 2008. Prior to that she worked for three years as an HR Supervisor with the major Bahrain-based retailer Jawad Business Group. A holder of a Certificate in Personnel Practice (COO) and B.Sc. in Business Management from University of Hull, UK, Ms. Almulla had begun her career as a Training Coordinator with the Training Directorate of the Ministry of Health.

BU2 Cools Al Areen

Bahrain Grand Prix – Race No. 1!

Formula 1's historic 60th anniversary season will kick off right here in Bahrain on the 12th, 13th and 14th of March, with the first F1 race of the season set to take place alongside a host of support activities and entertainment.

This year heralds some of the most significant rule changes ever seen in the championship's history. The introduction of the refueling ban has seen all Formula 1 cars fitted with larger fuel tanks to make up for the lack of opportunities to fill up during the race. The change has had an impact on the car design, as the chassis have become longer to accommodate for the substantial increase in weight, resulting in a very different car when compared to last year's season.

Racing legend Michael Schumacher will be returning to Formula 1 under the grey and black colors of Mercedes GP. While many claim the 7 time World Champion will be able to pick up where he left off 3 seasons ago, others feel that he will have a hard time competing in a championship which is very different to the one he left in 2006. Felipe Massa, Fernando Alonso, Jenson Button, Lewis Hamilton and many other competitors will be hungry to claim victory by triumphing over Schumacher's grey and black Mercedes GP Formula 1 car during the season opener.

'Race Number One' will also see four brand new teams in the form of Virgin Racing F1 Team, Campos Meta 1, US F1 and Lotus Racing, increasing the starting grid to a phenomenal 26 cars – the most seen on track in over 15 years! With competitors such as Sebastian Buemi, Pedro De La Rosa, Lucas Di Grassi and Timo Glock leading these hungry new teams, it remains to be seen who will emerge on top at the end of the first round of the FIA Formula 1 World Championship!

On the sidelines of the main event will be concerts by international artists Sean Kingston, Flo Rida and renowned Arab singer Hussain Al Jasmi. Al Jasmi's concert is on Thursday 11th March, 1 day prior to the race, at the BIC concert area, located at the Circuit's facilities. All fans with a 3-day ticket to the 2010 Formula 1 Gulf Air Bahrain Grand Prix will be able to enjoy the concert free of charge. Fans will also be able to enjoy Bob Marley tribute band 'Legend,' which will be performing 4 times a day on stage 1 throughout the three day race. The Cash Cows will also be performing their own jazzy version of some of the best hits heard this year as they give their own unique take on guitar and double bass. These acts will be joined by Europe's number one hip hop dance crew, the B-Boy Champions and UK dance group, Plague, as well as Bahrain's own 'The Magnetics.'

In addition to the main event there are also several support races lined up, including the Bahrain based Chevrolet Supercars Middle East Championship, in which some of the region's most up and coming drivers will take to the track to compete in the 6th round of this season. This race will see Bahraini racing prodigy Raed Raffii in action, one of the youngest drivers on the regional racing circuit.

Meanwhile, the opening round of the Porsche Mobil 1 Supercup Championship will take place at the Gulf Air Bahrain Grand Prix. The series sees identical Porsche 911 Cup Cars compete, making driver skill and talent a big decider. Also, the GP2 Asia Series will be holding the fourth and final round of its 2009-2010 season, with many of the future stars of single-seater racing showcasing their talents on the biggest stage.

Tickets to the 2010 Gulf Air Bahrain Grand Prix are available at the Bahrain International Circuit's Welcome Centre, at the BIC Ticket Stands located at Seef Mall and Bahrain City Centre, via the BIC call Centre (contactable on +973 17450000), or by accessing the BIC website on www.bahraingp.com
